A divorce suit which was heard in the district court last evening by Judge Howell brought the facts of a rather short and disappointed wedding trip to light. The plaintiff in the suit was Mrs. Emma Builen Empey, who testified that she married Aifred Empey July 3, 1904, at Ogden City, and with a happy heart they started that evening on a wedding tour to St. Louis to visit the World's Fair. Everything went along smoothly until they arrived near Echo, about 50 miles east of Ogden on the Union Pacific, when the conquetor called for their tickets, and imagine the embarrassment of the happy bride when the young man said he had no tickets and the train was stopped at Echo and the bridal pair was put off Echo and the bridal pair was put off Echo and the bridal pair was put of the train. This was the young bride's first disappointment. They returned to Ogden the next day, and she testified that for a few months her husband supported her on "other people's money," but that run out, and then money," but that run out, and the came the great disappointment of the marriage life. He failed to suppoher in any way and on Jan. 6, 1905 she left him, and he has not sines then given her one penny. In her testimony the young disappointed wife was corroborated by her mother. Mrs Nettie Bullen. The court granted the decree of giveree, and $50 attorney's fees, but Mrs. Empey said she did not

The things found buried in the guich by a sheepherder in the employ of Mr. Paramore of Parowan, and taken from their hiding place by the latter gentle-man, consist of the running gear of a three and a half inch Studebaker wagen, taken apart, and the wagen longue and reach sowed into shorter lengins, the better to bury them in the hole where found. The number on the wagon corresponds with the Penney wagon, which was nearly new when he left home. Alvin Penney, upon reaching Parowan, before seeing the stuff found. described the harness very minutely telling that his father's harness (which was an old one) had certain new straps, buckles, cockeyes, and straight bits with a wire fixing on one of the tugs.
